NEMO'S COMPLIMENTS TO W. L. H.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—

W. L. H. in the BULLETIN of Oct. 29 says: "Nemo in one of his articles attempts to drag down the honored name of Abraham Lincoln, by ascribing to him license sentiments or views." I beg to differ with W. L. H. with what he calls the attempt to drag down, etc. For a finer sentiment than that which I quoted from Lincoln was never uttered by anyone the world over. It is thus: "Until my tongue shall be silenced in death, I will continue to fight for the rights of man." Prohibition would destroy that very sentiment. I have been asked the source of my authority and have given it. I now ask of W. L. H. and Homo their authority to prove that the views that I quoted from Abraham Lincoln were not his on the subject of prohibition. I believe Lincoln to have been a true temperance man, but no extremist or fanatical prohibitionist; he was not made that way. There are hundreds of thousands of honest temperance people in the United States who despise the very name and principles of the despotic prohibition politician and fanatic.

W. L. H. says: He (Nemo) caused to be published in the BULLETIN statements similar to these, 'Prohibition lowers the value of property,' etc. Omen in reply gave open letters from the Mayor and other officials of the city of Atlanta while under prohibition, proving that it was better off financially and morally than at any other period of its history. I will only ask W. L. H. one simple question: If the city of Atlanta was so prosperous financially and morally, as Omen said the Mayor's and other official letters proved, why did the people rise and crush prohibition out of sight by an overwhelming majority after only one year's trial? For anyone to say that to suddenly strike out of existence hundreds of thousands of capital in closing breweries, distilleries, wholesale and retail dealers, also hotels and saloons, thereby throwing thousands of people suddenly out of employment, and then to say that prosperity increased financially and morally during that year of prohibition in Atlanta, looks so ridiculous that I never thought there could be a person outside of Omen who would ever ask me to answer such a nonsensical question.

I quote from the Atlanta Constitution, Nov. 21, 1887, the following: "There are twice as many houses vacant to day, under prohibition, as there were when there was no prohibition, but not a statesman. He is known throughout the United States as a fanatic, or a one-day politician. Windom, Hamlin and Frye were good men who did no harm to themselves, or anyone else. I will now ask W. L. H. and Homo, if they acknowledge the following as coming from Lincoln:

"So I understand Grant drinks whisky to excess?" interrogatively remarked the President.
"Yes," was the reply.
"What whisky does he drink?" inquired Mr. Lincoln.
"What whisky?" doubtfully queried his hearers.
"Yes. Is it Bourbon or Monongahela?"
"Why do you ask, Mr. President?"
"Because if it makes him win victories like this, I will send a demijohn of the same kind to every general in the army."
